Education Week events underway

Where can you find a future sports star, doctor or a budding scientist at work this week?

Probably right around the corner at your neighborhood school. It's Education Week this week at Drayton Valley and area schools, and a number of these have planned special exhibits to encourage you to visit.

Beginning with a winter fun day Monday at the Eldorado School, Education Week continues with open houses, concerts, career seminars, challenge volleyball matches, displays of students' work—just about anything you can imagine.

It's all designed to show communities what goes on behind the walls of school—what subjects are being taught, and what a day in the classroom is really like.

The Feb. 24 issue of the Western Review contains an agenda on page 12, outlining some of the activities planned at various area schools during Education Week. Parents with further questions on events should contact their local school.

It's Education Week—enjoy what your children have prepared for you!

Residents angered by county's business fee

By Masha Dick

The County of Parkland will institute a license fee for businesses operating in the county as of April 1, but residents are the more angry at the move than the fee itself. They are angry at the county for having information on the fee in the back pages of the newspaper. They are angry at the county for not making it known to the public that the fee is being charged. Man charged in attack

A local 21-year-old man will be appearing in Drayton Valley court this Thursday in connection with the rape of a 16-year-old girl.

Gregory Allen Melvin of Draytonburg was charged by RCMP following the rape.

The victim was charged by RCMP following the rape.

Short causes fire

An electrical short circuit was thought to be the cause of a fire which broke out in a Drayton Valley home last Friday afternoon.

According to Fire Chief Sheldon Fries, the fire began in the basement and had apparently started when rubbing on the propane line to the hot water tank.

Seminar gives real insight

By Roxanne Grosche
A real estate seminar which was open to management and sales personnel was held in Drayton Valley on Feb. 25.

The seminar was sponsored by Realty World and approximately 23 people from Edson, Irrigon and other communities were in attendance.

Petro-Canada gully

Petro-Canada was found guilty in Drayton Valley court on Feb. 25 of emitting excess vapors and was fined $1000.

Charges of providing stock tank vapors to be discharged into the atmosphere were laid following an incident which occurred at the Petro-Canada plant, 30 miles west of Cypress, last November.

The problem began when a cloud of 1025 or more vapors escaped from a storage tank on the well site and affected some of the workers. Two employees were sent to hospital with minor gas poisoning.

Man charged in mishap

A 20-year-old Warburg man was charged for driving without due care and attention following an accident which occurred last Sunday night on the North Saskatchewan River bridge.

The single vehicle mishap occurred when the driver lost control and the vehicle rolled onto its side. It then rolled approximately 50 feet before coming to a halt, said Drayton Valley RCMP.

Approximately $5,000 to $6,000 damage was done to the vehicle and RCMP. No one was injured in the accident.

The money said it will be used to help pay the interest on the loan. It also says the firm will be charged and have to submit applications for licenses. Councilor Voth said he would support the idea of a special meeting on the issue, and said one could possibly be scheduled with council if interest existed to hold such a session.

There's no life like Army life

By Chris Houshka
"If you've got what it takes...ask me about it," said one man about the purpose of a recent visit to Drayton Valley by a recruiting officer from the Canadian Armed Forces.

Sgt. Steve Poirier, a military career counselor, was in town of Feb. 17 to provide information on the system, rather than just signing up out of the blue, he added.

When he talks with youngsters who are thinking about getting ahead in life, Sgt. Poirier tells them "It's not a good idea."

He said there are over 100 trades available in military, and almost 30 classifications for officers. However, he added opportunities in most careers are limited, except for the industry and manufacturing trades, where he said there are plenty of opportunities.

On his visit to Drayton Valley, Sgt. Poirier usually only sees two or three people in the course of a day. On this occasion, he had one person inquiring about pilot training, and another who stopped in because his pickup broke down nearby.

Sgt. Poirier's initial meeting with candidates serves as a form of screening interview, where he determines if it's worth the person's while to fill out an application. He also uses a general knowledge test to get a better indication of a person's potential.

In the last few years he has seen the ability to learn, and to think quickly and correctly. Sgt. Poirier said it's quite possible members of the force will be dealing with human life as some time, so he stressed it's important for him to be able to judge someone's character and level of maturity.

If Sgt. Poirier feels he has a legitimate candidate, the next step is a visit to the Edmonton office for an in-depth interview, aptitude test and physical.

Schwab honored for Rural Crime Watch duty

By Monica Dick
Drayton Valley's Alberta Agriculture office and local businessmen gathered last week to honor area farmers, and of all individuals it is a precinct that will be represented on a yearly basis during Agriculture Week.

About 120 people attended a banquet sponsored by Alberta Agriculture and local business—dinner designed, as district agricultural Doug Walby noted, to say thanks to farmers for the work they've done.

"A lot of you have helped our job immensely, giving us a hand when we've asked for it," he said. "For this we say thanks."

A special thank you was also handed out during the evening, with the presentation of a plaque to Rural Crime Watch secretary treasurer Margaret Schwab.

"She's given so much of herself to make this program work," said presenter Constable Keith Shaverdine, the RCMP member of Crime Watch. Mrs. Schwab accepted the means to prevent crimes can be found in the people like you who own the land," he noted.

The banquet was followed by guest speaker George Matheson, who enlightened the crowd with a thorough and often entertaining look at hunting regulations.

Mr. Matheson, author of the Rap Hunter column in the Western Review, pointed out the recent discrepancy in the Wildlife Act, Party Trapline Act and the Criminal Code.

He added that keeping the vehicle on the road was "such and go for awhile," however, he was able to stop the vehicle without anyone getting hurt.

"Someone could have been killed for it was a real battle to keep it on the road," he said.

Mr. DeLong went on to say that another ambulance had to be called out from Drayton Valley to complete the patient's trip to Edmonton.

The woman who had been trapped in the truck was taken to Breton hospital.

Woman is saved

By Suzanne Greenley
One woman was injured and had to be freed using the jaws of life following an accident which occurred one mile west of the Alberta corner on Highway 38 at approximately 9:40 p.m. on Feb. 25.

The accident happened when a truck owned by Randy Transport of Hisku collided with a gravel truck owned by Albert Wildeboer of Edmonton.

A woman who was a passenger in the Drayton truck became trapped in the vehicle and the jaws of life had to be brought in from Drayton Valley in order to free her.

According to Drayton Valley Fire Chief Sheldon Fenn, once the rescue team reached the scene of the accident it only took approximately five minutes to release the woman.

Shortly after the first accident, an ambulance which was transporting a patient to Edmonton arrived at the scene and collided with some of the debris.

"I just couldn't see the debris on the road," said Dick DeLong, operator of the Drayton Valley Ambulance which collided with the debris.

He added that keeping the vehicle on the road was "such and go for awhile," however, he was able to stop the vehicle without anyone getting hurt.

"Someone could have been killed for it was a real battle to keep it on the road," he said.

Mr. DeLong went on to say that another ambulance had to be called out from Drayton Valley to complete the patient's trip to Edmonton.

Bowlers win

Three young bowlers from Drayton Valley have each won the second step in the Four Steps to Stardom youth bowling program.

The first step was a house qualifying roll-off, then the next step was the more difficult versus Common, Leduc and Watskiwin.

In some play, Darcy Berger won the boys' single event in the hanson division (8 to 10 years). Leanne Lantieri was the girls' single winner in the junior category (11 to 13 years), while Curt Maine took the boys' single event in the senior division (14 to 16 years).

The three bowlers now move on to the third step in their quest for stardom. The provincial finals slated for Red Deer on March 16. The fourth step is the national Championships in Saskatoon on May 7, 8 and 9.

Ceasars prepare

By Chris Shanahan

Although the weather is a little too cold for playing soccer outdoors, Drayton Valley Ceasars have still begun preparing for the upcoming season.

Ceasars started training indoors in January, and are continuing to do so every Wednesday evening at 7 p.m. at Frank Maddock High School.

The club will again be competing in the Central Alberta Soccer League (CASH) when the new season begins in the spring. About six or seven teams will make up the CASH this year, including the 1980 league champions, Bentley.

Drayton Valley made it to the finals last year, and the club's executive is hoping for another successful season. Steve Kelly is manager and Chris Kelly will act as player-manager.

The early workouts have been mostly indoors, and Simon Kelly said any new players are welcome to come and try out. He added some players from last year's squad have returned as well.

It should be a bit of a rebuilding year. Kelly is optimistic the local soccer club will have another good year, hopefully repeating some of their past victories. Ceasars won tournaments in Hinton and Banff, 1981, and finished last for first place in regular CASH standings.

League meetings are under way to get things organized and set the final field of teams.

Lamplighters lose

Lamplighters lost to Sylvan Lake on Feb. 20 and dropped another game to Lacombe on Feb. 22, before finding the range on Feb. 23 with a 9-1 thrashing of Crosswings Oilers.

Bill Hochman led the way for Drayton Valley's oilburners in the contest played in Evansburg, registering a hat-trick. Merle Baird bagged a pair in the win, while singles came from Don Hanson, Ray Larivie, Marvin Tinkhaus and Dennis McGuck. Notander Al McDonald played a strong game between the pipes for Lamplighters, while defenceman Stan Torkelson was a steady force behind the Mullins.

In the narrow defeat to Lacombe, Baird and Don Decker notched Lamplighter markers. McGuck got both goals in a losing cause, when a short-handed Drayton Valley squad went against Sylvan Lake. Lamplighters are heading to Medicine Hat this weekend (March 5, 6 and 7) for the Wild West oilburners' tournament.

Consortium seeks business input

By Monica Dick
The new Peninsula District Consortium wants to be more than a place where local residents can go to take "one at a time" programs," and its co-ordinator is seeking help from area businesses in determining which courses should be taught to employees and those in the work force.

Following a name change from the D.V. Education Consortium earlier this year, the center for adult learning is also opening a new calendar of courses to offer the community. Co-ordinator Brian Minelly said the questionnaire sent off to businesses this past week reflected a few of the requested courses from the community, in addition to some which the Consortium hopes to get reaction to via the survey.

The courses are oriented towards the business end, and we are hoping to get a number of the surveys back to see what areas people are looking for training," he noted.

The Consortium is affiliated with six post-secondary institutions, including the Alberta Petroleum Industry Training Centre, Alberta Vocational Centre, Athabasca University, Grant MacEwan Community College, the Northern Alberta Institute of Technology, and the University of Alberta.

It offers a range of credit programs, from accounting for small businesses to health and the popular introduction to microcomputers. Courses are run by a local regional advisory committee, with members from town, business, and industry. These recommendations are then passed on to a board of directors for setting up the mechanics of a course with the institutions.

The advisory committee plans to meet to discuss the business survey results at the next board meeting in Drayton Valley on March 25th. Mr. Minelly said he's hoping responses to the questionnaire can make the Consortium more responsive to the needs of area citizens, by offering the kinds of courses these people can use a real for in the community. There will be taken into consideration in the Consortium's new programming for the upcoming year. The Consortium was begun last summer in the midst of the current provincial government budget, and Mr. Minelly said he won't have said this spring what funds will be available to run programs. "Hopefully, the minister will have some kind of announcement forthcoming—there's anticipation in the community for fall training programs by the fall while the federal government is in the province," he said.

The Consortium got its initial start on programming via a survey of needs published in the Western Review in the spring of 1981, and Mr. Minelly said the stacks of responses to this questionnaire kept him busy through the summer session course to fill the areas people indicated on the other credit courses like Canadian History, Accounting, and the 32-week Clerk-Typist session are underway. The Clerk-Typist course runs fulltime during the week with two instructors, Mr. Minelly said, and it is utilizing space at the Frank Madden High School for its instruction. The Consortium will also offer the Grade 12 Equivalent program, with sessions planned for March and June.

In office at 5225 56A Street is shared by the Powerhouse Purifier Education Council, which combined with the town's recreation department in January to offer a selection of several non-credit adult courses during the winter. Having both credit and non-credit institutions under one roof is a bonus in helping track of the courses available, Mr. Minelly noted, in addition to providing the choice to take programs from both areas.

Contact between the two groups ensures the program needs of the community will be met, but offering a number of unrelated random courses isn't the goal of the Consortium. "Our success is measured in graduates, not in the number of courses we can offer," he said.

For those persons interested in the upcoming course selection, a copy of the winter calendar is available at the Consortium office.

OUT OF SIGHT OUT OF MIND

On the watch against the crime of forgetfulness and loss of the mind!

Why? Because you may not realize it, but you are forgetting to take your vitamins. And that's where you're wrong. Because to find out where your memory is vulnerable and where to strengthen it, you need to take a vitamin supplement.

Do you have forgetful habits at all? If so, you're in need of a vitamin supplement. It's one of the most important things you can do for your memory.

What's AADAC? Here's a look at the services

After four years of operation, the staff of Drayton Valley offers to discuss people who are unaware of the services offered by AADAC to the people of the Drayton Valley area. Perhaps a brief summary of our aims, philosophy and services will be making you, the public, more aware.

The Alberta Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Commission is an agency of the province who are the present directors, Mr. John Goggin, is the MHA from Lethbridge West.

As a government agency we are responsible to the legislature and those in the Alberta General Assembly. The services of the commission will be heavily grouped into public education, specialized training and information.

Since we act to short term solutions will work, we need to separate programs, presentations, etc. into long and short term projects. The assessment group will deal with frustration, anxiety, guilt, and fear with a view to ensuring the client is not on his own needs without returning to the community.

Further information on these groups is available by telephoning 542-5669. The Drayton Valley office of the Alberta Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Commission (AADAC) is located in the Provincial Building, Drayton Valley, Alberta. The services of the commission are available to all.

Counting calories? Here's some tips to know

By Janice McGregor

body. Fat furnishes twice as many calories as carbohydrate or protein. In other words, one ounce of salad oil has twice as many calories as one ounce of sugar (carbohydrate) or one ounce of protein (protein). The number of calories in a food depends on the amount of these three substances present in the food.

One exception is alcohol. Alcohol is not a fat, protein, or carbohydrate, but it is burned by the body as if it were carbohydrate. Therefore, the body can and does convert alcohol to fat. Foods with a higher percentage of water (example: celery) have fewer calories.

Treatment of a food changes its caloric value only if the protein, fat or carbohydrate content is changed. For example, cooking bread does not change its caloric value. But, with a higher percentage of water (example: celery) have fewer calories.

Energy is used in two ways. One-half to two-thirds is used to maintain body functions such as the work of the heart and lungs or the mechanisms for body growth and repair. The second use of energy is for voluntary physical activity. Each person has his or her own individual needs for calories. Some factors which influence these needs are:

Age. The more rapid the rate of growth, the higher the calorie needs for each pound of body weight. However, when growth is completed, the calorie needs decline and continue to do so for the rest of one's life. For example, a moderately active man who is 5'4" and weighs 155 pounds would require 2,800 calories at 25 years, 2,500 calories at 40 years, and 2,200 calories at 65 years.

Therefore, as we grow older, small changes in the food intake must be made. If the calorie intake is not decreased, the extra energy spread is the result. One-third of a dozen extra calories each week, eating smaller portions or walking instead of driving whenever possible will help control weight.

Body Size and Composition
If all other factors are equal, the larger person uses more energy to do a given task. Besides size, calorie requirement varies according to the relative degree of body fatness. Lean body tissue has a higher caloric need than fatty tissue.

Activity level. Physical activity takes energy. More energy is used when activity is vigorous, when large instead of small muscles are used, and when activity is sustained over a period of time.

In this technological age, activity may be the most significant cause of gradual overweight.

Several studies indicate that genetic factors may influence some types of obesity. Even so, obesity will not occur unless more calories are eaten than are used.

All food calories are alike. All calories are simply a unit of measure, calories supplied by fat are the same as those supplied by energy. They still contain extra calories.

All foods furnish some calories. Fat, protein, and carbohydrate provide, fat or carbohydrate furnishes calories when burned by the

Hodge-podge recipes

By Wendy Thomson

I've been cooking up a real hodge-podge of different dishes lately and will try out a good variety today.

Land Soup

Ingredients: 1 cup lentils, 3 1/2 cups water, 1 cup tomato sauce, 1/2 tsp salt, 1 tsp oregano, 1/2 tsp garlic powder, pinch cayenne.

Wash lentils, put in soup pot with water and soak overnight. Or if you're short of time, bring the lentils to a boil, turn off heat, add salt, for 30 minutes.

Drain lentils and add tomato, salt and remaining ingredients and more water if necessary. Reheat.

Serve four.

Note: If I have a hunk on hand, I cover it with water and let it simmer for a few hours, then use that broth to cook the lentils in.

Almond Cottage

Ingredients: 1/2 cup softened butter or margarine, 1/2 cup packed brown sugar, 1 tsp. baking powder, 1/2 tsp. salt, 1 egg, 1/2 cup quick cooking oats, 1/2 cup cracked, 1/2 cup ground almonds.

Note: There is no flour used in this batter.

Measure first five ingredients into a large bowl and beat until fluffy.

Add oats and almonds and mix to well with hands.

Divide dough in half and roll each ball between two sheets of waxed paper until 1/4 inch thick. Cut with hand-rolled cookie cutter, then place cookies on greased sheet.

Bake 12 to 14 minutes or until dark golden brown. Remove cookies from sheet with spatula and cool on a wire rack.

Stand aids headache

By Linda Groves

What do you do for a migraine? According to (young) in his book, Light on Yoga, you stand on your head. It sounds like torture for someone with a stabbing headache, and a quiver stomach, and whose eyes ache from the light.

The idea to try the headstand, though, is before you are as acutely ill that bed is the only place to go. It is good easier to check the headstand at the onset, than to try to cure it later, I know, because I have migraines as part of my heredity.

For me, it is not, unless, and a change of thought. The headstand, too, works, in prevention.

The tripod headstand is the simplest for the beginner. It requires less strength in the back than the conventional headstand.

Begin on your hands and knees. Place the hands flat on the floor, then position the head so that the two hands and the head form a triangle. Keep the elbows in straighten the knees, then bring the right knee forward to place on the right upper arm. Bring the left knee forward to place on the left upper arm. You will now be in a monkey stand position with your weight on your two hands and the top of your head.

As a beginner, you may have to try the posture with only one knee on the elbow, then alternate because the floor can feel very hard and your head tingles up, use a small cushion at first.

Once you are steady in the monkey stand, raise your right arm to lift off the knees. Hold the left hand behind the back.

When you are comfortable with the half headstand, proceed to straighten the legs. At first, you may wish to use a cushion of the mat, or to have a partner to ease you over-balance.

Even if you are never able to master the headstand, just the attempt is beneficial in improving circulation to the head.

Tea set for March 17

By Edna Hargrave

Feb. 20 Mary McInnis came down to the Shagari Lodge and a few of us seniors went there too. We had a sing-along.

Feb. 21 three people showed up at the Drop-In Centre. We played music and played pool. Clerk's Bob Cat was there scripping away now around the building.

We all say many thanks for all this work you are doing here.

Feb. 22 we had six tables for crib. High for the ladies was Eunice Miller. Low was Ray Brock. High for the men was Harry Tweedle. Low was Frank Hargrave.

Feb. 23 I went over to County of Parkland to do photos in the other photo in Black Gold/Yellowhead zone. I saw if they would like to come here and join us in a tournament of games with us here. It looks like the month of March may be better than February has been, but we all know February hasn't been too good for planning things when people must come from any distance.

Feb. 25 we had our monthly meeting. Not too many attended. We are going to serve for Lady Kane at Drop-In Centre.

Our sympathies are with the Kane family and friends, also to the Allen family at Violet Grove.

To all people in hospital, get well soon.

Day of hope to look for our St. Patrick's Day tea and bake sale.

Patrollers on duty

By Monica Dick

They watch the street corners near the Eldorado School Monday through Friday, sometimes in weather that would send most of us scurrying for shelter. But Paula, Tricia, Tammy, Terri, Scott, Daylen and the other school patrollers stick fast to their appointed post—they know they've got a job to do.

If you could spend some time talking to these patrollers, you'd soon realize they have a sense of responsibility that extends beyond their young years. The average age for patrollers at Eldorado is nine years, and the program's participants have some very definite ideas about doing their job and why they want to be patrollers.

"I like helping kids to get across the street," said Paula Mayan, and her comment was echoed by the others. "It's nice getting passes to the theatre too," said Tricia Burger, and Tammy Thomas' favorite part of the job is "seeing people across the street safely."

Terri Kähler, Scott Ross and Daylen Plasmann said they all like being they're doing their job well by helping people to cross the street, and Scott claims he even likes getting up to handle the morning patrol shift. The 20 patrollers are divided into two groups, with one week on and one off duty.

They have to get about 7 a.m. to be at their corners by 8 a.m. The patrollers who take the night shift also man the corners after school at 3:30 p.m., and there's a double shift for the adults who handle the noon hour traffic leaving and returning to school.

The patrollers say they're all looking forward to warmer weather—some of these shifts can be pretty cold, even if the average time of duty is 15 minutes.

If the job has its high spots, it also has a few areas the patrollers said they don't like.

Homeless men.

Each recanted tales of the men whom they'd had to cross their jobs, and some of the things they watch for during the winter season. Paula said she watches to make sure the drivers have seen her before she takes others across the street, and she won't cross children if the men are on the street with windows that haven't been scraped off.

"If they can't see out the windows, they may not be able to see kids either," she said.

Scott remembered a time he was not on patrol, and one car had stopped at the crossing. Another vehicle coming up alongside, however, didn't stop and only could see on Scott's part avoided an accident. If he could tell drivers anything to ensure safe crossings, Scott said he would advise they "don't turn on the red lights at the traffic signals on 30th Street and 34th Avenue."

The patrollers presently corner the children by standing the car, holding up Stop signs to warn traffic, and this is one system some would like to change. Daylen said he would like to see the patrollers go in a "starfish" crossing—where we stand out on the street with our arms out, like they do in Calgary.

To the meantime, patrollers will continue to provide the best service they can to ensure children can cross the street safely, giving up a good portion of before-and-after school free time to do so.

Captain gives a helping hand

By Monica Dick

Patrollers at Eldorado School look upon Keith Kohout as their "captain"—the person they can come to when there's problems with the job and they need someone to talk to.

Kohout views her role as one of teacher-supervisor for the program, which she has been leading after since she came to the school in 1975. "I was a school patrol once, and it's a program I enjoy doing. I don't always have a lot of time in which to do it, but it's fun—the kids make it worthwhile."

A lot of thought and deliberation goes into choosing which children will become patrollers at Eldorado. The call for patrollers goes out in the school in September, and Mr. Kohout starts the selection process with the first meeting of interested adults.

Patrollers enter a month of training in which they're taught how to do the job—mostly in the winter time," she added—the key to being a patroller and making this job responsible.

There's also a number of practice sessions each must attend prior to hitting the street corners for the real job of crossing children.

"We use a lot of reasons for not get together to practice, and we also use this time to learn the patrollers' design," she said.

The patrollers have regular monthly meetings where they go over the new schedule for the upcoming month, review their progress and also go into any problem they might be encountering with the job.

Sickness, death teach us best

By Rev. A.F. Irving
The experience of life has a way of teaching us many valuable lessons. Two main lessons and death of loved ones are those that teach us the best.

In a current study on the subject of prayer, sickness and death teaching us the best that is many cases of sickness that it was a direct result of sin. Thus a prayer for healing included confessions James 5:16 "Confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another that he may be healed."

In the life of Jesus there is the instance where James and his disciples met the lifted man. The disciples asked the question, "Master who did this, this man, or his parents, that he was born blind. Jesus answered, "Not he, but his parents, but the work of God should be manifest in him." (John 9:2 and 3)

Let us note the effect that a death had on one of God's prophets, Isaiah.

King Uzziah had been a very good king in Judah. There had been prosperity and success during his reign. Uzziah was transgressed in that he went to the temple to offer incense upon the altar.

This was to be done only by the Levitical Priests. The priests warned him but he would not heed, then God reached down and he was stricken with leprosy and eventually died of this disease.

Isaiah had been a great adviser of Uzziah and his death had a profound effect on him. This is described in Isaiah 38:14.

"In the year that King Uzziah died I saw the Lord sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up, and his train filled the temple. Above it stood the seraphim, each one having six wings, with two he covered his face, with two he covered his feet, and with two he did fly."

Then said I, Woe is not for I am undone because I am a man of unclean lips, and I dwell in the midst of a people of unclean lips. For mine eyes have seen the King, the Lord of hosts. Then flew one of the seraphim unto me, having a live coal in his hand, which he had taken with the tongs from off the altar.

"And he said I am on my mouth, and said, in mine hand touched thy lips, and these labours I have taken, and thou shalt be purified. After that I heard the voice of the Lord saying, Whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Then said I, Here am I, send me."
